

Featured Update - Columbus Metropolitan Library, Aaron O'Donovan

The Columbus Metropolitan Library has become a partner the Community Webs project.

Community Webs is a two year IMLS and Internet Archive funded program to provide education, applied training, cohort support, and web archiving services for public librarians to develop expertise in web archiving.

Over the next two years, participating libraries will collectively preserve over 35 terabytes of web based community heritage materials for long-term access, contribute to educational resources relating to web archiving and digital preservation, and explore new forms of local engagement and partnerships through public programming support.

The resulting resources and materials will be made publicly available to other institutions interested in pursuing their own web archiving programs.

They join 25 other public libraries in the project.

General Notes

Amy McCory has a time in/time out function for Access - willing to share
